[40] It was released on May 6.[41] The video features various styles from the 1950s has a "classic" look, while also being inspired by pin-up models. [43] The secretary's look from the 1960s was inspired by the drama series of A® Little Mad Men. The 70's factory worker has a "Norma Rae 3 feeling". The businesswoman of the 80's was inspired by the Working Girl film, a look to which LÃ 3 fish personally connected, given that it was a neither during this day. The last look was described by the stylist Haenn as "just a modern J. Lo".[43] In this last dance sequence, you can see LÃ 3 fish wearing stiletto denim boots with thigh-high design by the Barbadian singer Rihanna with Manolo Blahnik, which had been gifted to LÃ 3 fish by Rihanna.[44] It was reported that the production 3 the music video was almost halted due to a shortage of funds, resulting in the hiring 3 of a product placement specialist two days before the recording 3 n[41]. Among the product placements in the video are the magazine Vogue, the vodka Beluga and the café Lavazza.[45] Also presented is the application 3 social network more 3 "Friendable".[46] Synopsis A housewife of the 50 is among the many different characters that LÃ 3 pez plays in the video clip of "Ain't Your Mama". In the clip, LÃ 3 pez plays a number of unique arguet characters, including: a news anchor who To women "get up against their male oppressors", a 50-year-old housewife, a secretary of the 60s, a badly paid factory worker in the 70s (his chief chief interpreted by the Actor Eric Womack) and an entrepreneur of the 80s. [47] [48] It opens with the news news Là sish having a heated conversation a unique telefà cabin, saying: \"I'm tired, I've been working all day! No, I can't... you must [do it]\". She then appears in a television news studioà sn, where part of Hillary Clinton's famous 1995 speech \"Women's" Rights Are Human Rights\," followed by part of Patricia Arquette's Academy Award speech (specifically Arquette saying: \"It's our time to have equal pay once and for all, and equal rights for women in the United States of America\"), followed by part of Gloria Steinem's famous 1971 speech to the Women of Amé Rica\", can be heard in the background. [49] [50] [51] fish ignores the guià on and begins to speak: \"Look, I don't have to tell you that things are wrong. Taken for granted, ignored, overlooked, underestimated." [42] The other characters watch news anchor LÃ operation per granted, ignored, overlooked, underestimated." [43] The other characters watch news anchor LÃ operation per granted per it anymore!\", which is a reference to a line uttered by the character Howard Beale of the film satúrica Network (1976). [52] As a result of the news anchor's speech, all women begin to rebel against the men who have been exploiting them. [48] The blonde housewife of the 1950s stops attending to her husband, sings \"I ain't gon' be cookin' all day. I'm not your mom\," then throws food over her head. [42] The redhead secretary of the 1960s returns vodka to her boss's face. It ends with a women's march in Brooklyn, New York. 3 fish wears a white monkey for a final dance scene. [44] Recepcià 3 n The music video received praise from presidential candidate Hillary Clinton, whose speech is among those in him. [53] After his first three days, the music video had obtained more than 11 million visits. [41] Sasha Geffen of MTV News called the visual \ "Politically charged \". [48] Billboard cobo Leila praised the video as \ "very entertaining \", noting that the "history of the struggle of women for independence", with various cultural references pop and social. [52] The writer of complex magazines Suzannah Weiss praised his "powerful line of plot," noting: "It is an hymn for women who care for the children of man everywhere, and the music video links it with bigger sexism issues that contribute to these relationships. "[54] From this video, Dave Quinn of People said, "is not encouraging words when it comes to the feminist message of the song,"[55], while Richy Rosario de Vibe wrote: "As many other women who have shown their difficult situation in gender inequality through art, Ms. Lopez is definitely making a statement. "[56] Sabienna Bowman of the magazine Bustle praised the music video, "Every frame of the video is loaded with historical images that take you from the beginning of the second feminism wave movement to today." In addition, underlining its context, Bowman pointed out that "the historical context behind the video is beautifully represented and full of pop culture scripts to famous films, as well as the very real story of women whose lives were changed by the impact of second wave feminism. "[57] On the contrary, Christina Cauterucci for Slate magazine reacted negatively, labeling the video a "sdiff premonition of the future of feminism" and saying that it serves as "a useful illustration of an ascending brand of feminism that presumes a more commercialized style than the political substance."[58] Presidential candidate Hillary Clinton, whose speech was shown in the opening sequence, thanked Lopez for the video assigned by Women On April 7, 2016, Lopez premiered "Ain't Your Mama" at the end of the American Idol series. Speaking of the performance beforehand, he said:is going to be very high energy."[22] Lopez wore a bright French lady suit while singing "Ain't Your Mama", surrounded by several back-up dancers. She followed him with a performance of her success "We're going to get Loud," experiencing a quick change of suit. [59] The following month, he played the song during a private concert at the Hammerstein Ballroom which was hosted by Telemundo. [60] Lopez als added the song to the list of his Las Vegas Residence, Everything I have. He later performed the song as part of his medley during the MTV Video Music Awards 2018 on August 20, 2018 at Radio City Music Hall in New York.[61] On May 2, 2021 Lopez led the VAX Live of Global Citizen: The Concert to Reunite the World, a campaign aimed at promoting the COVID-19 vaccine, where he closed the show with "Ain't Your Mama" - 3:38 CD single "Ain't Your Mama" - 3:38 and personal Tidal adapted credits.
